The Metropolitan Transportation Commission's (MTC) Transportation 2030 Plan will be the comprehensive roadmap that guides investments in the transportation network between 2005 and 2030. In developing the regional plan, MTC works closely with transit operators, Caltrans and other local, regional, state and federal partners. The nine county congestion management agencies (CMAs) have a specific role in setting priorities for local transportation projects to be included in the plan. Together, MTC, its partners and you—the user of the system—will decide the best policies and investments for the future of the Bay Area.

Use this guide to contact MTC Commissioners, the CMAs or other members of the Bay Area Partnership, a consortium of agencies responsible for moving people and goods in the Bay Area, as well as protecting the region's environmental quality.
